5. Since the density of n-butyl chloride is 0.88 g/mL, it will appear as the upper phase at each stage of the isolation. The other phases would all be more dense.

6. Many organic compounds will co-distill (azeotrope) with water. One may observe an incorrect boiling point in addition to obtaining an impure (cloudy) product.